The Great Quillow

This play is based on a short story written by James Thurber. It is an ideal play for children and adults to perform ~~depending on the situation~~ because it suits all circumstances, if needbe on elaborate set and costuming could be designed, or no set and no costumes would still be adequate.

We have a simple set and costumes, which suits our needs. The children are largely responsible for all aspects of the play.

Sorting costumes, designing sets, painting, building props, lighting^{the ice up} etc. This was so the children could appreciate all sides of putting on a play.

We would like to thank ~~parents~~ the Drama Club members that have supported us and helped us throughout this year. Also thanks to parents for transporting children to the club during the year.
